P R E F A C E.

QUOI qu'il paroisse difficile de parler en faveur d'un abrégé, cependant cet Epitome ne manque pas de raisons pour le rendre recommandable; car, excepté les phrases qui ne servent qu'à illustrer le sens des mots, il a tous les avantages que le Public a bien voulu remarquer dans le Dictionnaire in Quarto du même auteur: sur-tout les différentes acceptations des termes expliquées séparément, et cette dernière Edition est enrichie de plusieurs centaines de mots qui ne se trouvent réellement dans aucun autre Dictionnaire François et Anglois. On y a conservé les accens sur les mots Anglois pour en faciliter la prononciation aux étrangers, en faveur desquels on a aussi marqué les irrégularités des verbes Anglois, en y ajoutant le prétérit et le participe passif lorsqu'ils ne se forment pas régulièrement de l'infinitif.

Mais comme c'est particulièrement pour faciliter l'étude de la langue Française que nous avons le plus travaillé, on aura dans cette nouvelle Edition un secours qui ne se trouve dans aucun autre Dictionnaire dans les deux langues; c'est que, outre que les verbes irréguliers y sont conjugués dans l'ordre alphabétique, on a joint à tous les infinitifs (excepté ceux de la première conjugaison) le gérondif et le participe passif d'où se forment tous les tems simples des verbes, et on a placé au commencement de la partie Française une table qui expose d'un coup d'œil cette formation. C'est aussi pour réduire le nombre des irréguliers, que l'on n'a pas voulu se limiter aux quatre conjugaisons régulières admises par le Sieur Boyer; on a jugé plus à propos de se conformer aux meilleurs grammairiens modernes, et en donner dix, toutes régulières, que d'augmenter les difficultés par des subdivisions et anomalies dans chacune de ces conjugaisons, qui ne servent qu'à embarrasser.

Dans la partie Française, tous les verbes sont suivis d'un chiffre depuis 1. jusqu'à 10. qui en dénote la conjugaison et répond à la table donnée: ainsi chanter, v. a. 1. bâtir, v. a. 2. partir, v. n. 3. instruire, v. a. 9. &c. font entendre que chanter est un verbe actif de la première conjugaison; bâtir, verbe

THOUGH it may seem a difficult Matter to speak in Behalf of an Abridgment, yet this Epitome does not want Reasons to recommend itself; for, excepting those Phrases which serve only to elucidate the Sense of the Words, it has all the Advantages which the Public have been pleased to observe in the ROYAL Quarto DICTIONARY of the same Author; chiefly the different Acceptations of Terms distinguished and explained, with several hundred Words in this last Edition, which are really not to be found in any other FRENCH and ENGLISH Dictionary. We have retained the Accents which are added to the English Words, in order to facilitate the Pronunciation of them to Foreigners, for whose Sake we have likewise pointed out the Irregularities of the English Verbs, by adding to the Infinitive, the Preterite and the Participle when these are not formed regularly.

But, as our greatest Endeavours have been to facilitate the Study of the French Tongue, this Edition will afford to the young Students an Help not to be had in any other FRENCH and ENGLISH Dictionary; for, besides that all the irregular Verbs are conjugated in the alphabetic Order, we have added to all the regular (those of the first Conjugation excepted) the Gerund and Participle from whence all the simple Tenses are formed, and there is prefixed at the Beginning of the French Part, a Table which shows at one View, how the Tenses are formed from one another. It is likewise with a View of reducing the Number of Irregulars, that, without confining ourselves to the four regular Conjugations admitted by BOYER, we have thought it more proper to conform to the best modern Grammarians, and to give ten Conjugations, all of them very regular, than to add Difficulties upon Difficulties, by puzzling Anomalies and Subdivisions in each Conjugation.

In the French Part, every Verb is followed by a Figure from 1. to 10. which denotes its Conjugation, answerable to the given Table: thus, by chanter, v. a. 1. bâtir, v. a. 2. partir, v. n. 3. instruire, v. a. 9, &c. one is to understand that chanter is an active Verb of the first Conjugation; bâtir, an active Verb of the verbe actif de la seconde; partir, verbe neutre de la troisième; instruire, verbe actif de la neuvième, &c.

the second; partir, a neuter Verb of the third; instruire, an active Verb of the ninth, &c.

De l'Infinitif se forme toujours le Futur; ce qui se fait dans les trois premières conjugaisons, en y ajoutant ai; comme aimer, aimerai; unir, unirai; sortir, sortirai. Dans la quatrième, en changeant enir en iendrai; venir, je viendrai. Dans la cinquième, en changeant evoir en evrai; recevoir, je recevrai. Dans la sixième aire en erai; faire je ferai. Et dans les quatre dernières, en changeant l'e final en ai: craindre, je craindrai; connoître, je connoîtrai; instruire, j'instruirai; rendre, je rendrai. Le conditionnel est invariablement formé du futur en changeant la terminaison ai en ois. J'aimerai, j'aimerois; je recevrai, je recevrois; j'instruirai, j'instruirois; je rendrai, je rendrois, &c.

The Future, in all Conjugations, is formed from the Infinitive: In the three First, by adding ai to it, as from aimer, j'aimerai; unir, j'unirai; sortir, je sortirai. In the fourth, by changing enir into iendrai; venir, je viendrai. In the fifth, by changing evoir into evrai, recevoir, je recevrai. In the sixth, aire into erai, faire, je ferai. And in the four last Conjugations, the final e of the Infinitive is changed into ai; as from craindre, je craindrai; connoître, je connoîtrai; instruire, j'instruirai; rendre, je rendrai. The Conditional is invariably formed from the future, by changing the Termination ai into ois; as j'aimerai, j'aimerois; je recevrai, je recevrais; j'instruirai, j'instruirois; je rendrai, je rendrois, &c.

La Terminaison du Gérondif est toujours en ant, qui changée en ons donne la première personne du pluriel du présent de l'indicatif, d'où se forme toujours l'imparfait, en changeant cette terminaison en ois. Ainsi, d'unissant, nous unissons, j'unissois; de craignant, nous craignons, je craignois, &c. règle générale pour tous les verbes réguliers et irréguliers.

The Gerund always ends in ant, which being changed into ons, gives the first Person plural of the Present of the Indicative, and being changed into ois, always gives the Imperfect. Thus, from unissant, nous unissons, j'unissois; from craignant, nous craignons, je craignois; &c. an invariable Rule for all Verbs regular and irregular.

Du Gérondif se forme encore le présent du subjonctif en changeant ant en e muet. Comme d'agissant, que j'agisse; de connoissant, que je connoisse, &c. excepté les verbes de la quatrième conjugaison, où enant est changé en ienne; venant, que je *vienn*e. Ceux de la cinquième, qui changent evant en oive, comme devant, que je *doiv*e; et ceux de la sixième, qui changent esant en asse; fesant, que je *fass*e, &c.

By changing the Termination of the Gerund into e mute, we have the Present of the Subjunctive, as, from agissant is formed que j'agisse; from connoissant, que je connoisse, &c. except the Verbs of the fourth Conjugation, which change enant of the Gerund into ienne, venant, que je vienn. Those of the fifth, which change evant into oive, devant, que je doive; and those of the sixth, wherein esant is changed into asse, fesant, que je fasse.

On peut dire encore que c'est du même gérondif que se forment les prétérits de l'indicatif et du subjonctif, dans les verbes de la septième et de la neuvième conjugaison, en changeant ant en is pour le prétérit de l'indicatif, et en isse pour celui du subjonctif. Comme de craignant, je craignis, que je craignisse; d'instruisant, j'instruisis, que j'instruisisse, &c.

Both the Preterites in the Verbs of the seventh and ninth Conjugations, may even be properly deduced from the same Gerund, by changing its Termination ant into is, for the Preterite of the Indicative, and into isse for that of the Subjunctive; thus from craignant, je craignis, que je craignisse, and from instruisant, j'instruisis, que j'instruisisse, &c.

Le Prétérit dans les autres conjugaisons se forme du Participe; dans la première en changeant l'e final en ai: parlé, je parlai; dans la seconde et troisième, où le Participe se termine en i, et dans la cinquième et la huitième où il se termine en u, on y ajoute une s, comme de bâti, senti, on fait je bâtis, sentis,

The Preterite in the other Conjugations is formed from the Participle: In the first by changing the final e into ai; thus from parlé, je parlai. In the second and third, where the Participle ends in i, and in the fifth and eighth where it terminates in u, the Preterite is formed by the Addition of an s. Thus from bâti, senti, reçu, bâtis, je sentis. De reçu et connu, je reçus, je connus. Dans la quatrième, enu se change en ins, revenu, je revins. Dans la sixième ait se change en is, fait, je fis, et dans la dixième, l'u final est changé en is, rendu, je rendis. Le Prétérit du subjonctif est invariablement formé du prétérit de l'indicatif; dans la première, en ajoutant se à la seconde personne du singulier; comme tu parlas, tu chantas, que je parlasse, que je chantasse. Et dans toutes les autres en ajoutant se à la première personne, je partis, que je partisse, je reçus, que je reçusse, &c.

Le Gérondif étant d'un si grand usage, nous nous flattons que l'étudiant nous saura gré de l'avoir tiré de l'oubli où il étoit, et de lui avoir donné des règles faciles et sûres pour en former les tems des verbes sans être obligé d'avoir recours à sa grammaire ou même à sa table. L'écolier voyant de suite, et s'accoutumant à lire de même, agir, agissant, agi; paroître, paroissant, paru; battre, battant, battu; bâtir, bâtissant, bâti; ne sera plus si porté à dire, nous bâtons, je bâtois, pour bâtissons, bâtissois; nous parons, je parois, au lieu de paroissions, paroïssois; satisfons pour satisfesons, &c. et mille autres mots semblables qui ne sont que trop communs dans les écoles, et parmi les commençans.

Si d'après cet exposé on se plaint de ne point voir les gérondifs et les participes des verbes de la première conjugaison, on répondra que c'est parce que ces verbes n'ont aucun augment syllabique, et que l'écolier ne peut y faire aucune méprise, le gérondif étant toujours formé en changeant la terminaison er de l'infinitif en ant; parler, parlant; et le participe en la changeant en é; parler, parlé, &c. nous dirons encore que ceci n'est qu'un abrégé; que les verbes de la première conjugaison sont très-nombreux, et qu'enfin nous nous sommes persuadés qu'il suffiroit de donner cette règle générale.

L'ordre dans lequel on a placé les tems dans les verbes irréguliers est le même que dans la Table donnée: l'infinitif, le gérondif, le participe, le présent, l'imparfait, le prétérit, reçu, connu, is formed, je bâtis, je sentis, je reçus, je connus, &c. In the fourth Conjugation the Preterite is formed by changing enu into ins; thus from revenu, je revins. In the sixth, ait of the Participle is changed into is; as from fait, je fis; and in the tenth, by changing the u final into is. Thus from rendu, répondu, is formed je rendis, je répondis, &c. The Preterite of the Subjunctive is invariably formed from the Preterite of the Indicative in the first Conjugation by adding se to the second Person singular of the Preterite. In all the others by adding the same Syllable se to the first Person. Thus, from tu parlas, tu chantas, is formed, que je parlasse, que je chantasse; from je partis, que je partisse, from je reçus, que je reçusse, &c.

The great Use of the Gerund thus demonstrated, we flatter ourselves that the Student who is to derive so much Advantage from it, will be very well pleased at our having drawn it from the Oblivion in which it was in some Measure buried, and at our having given him sure and easy Rules to make Use of it in the Formation of his Tenses, without being obliged to have recourse even to his Table, much less to his Grammar. Our young Learners, by seeing and using themselves to read together, agir, agissant, agi; paroître, paroissant, paru; battre, battant, battu; bâtir, bâtissant, bâti; will be no longer so apt to say, nous bâtons, je bâtois, instead of bâtissons, bâtissois; nous parons, je parois, instead of paroissions, paroïssois; satisfons, for satisfesons, &c. and a thousand of the like Improperities, too common in Schools, and among Beginners.

If any one should now avail himself of what we have said of the Use of the Gerund, in order to find Fault with us for not having joined it, together with the Participle, to the Verbs of the first Conjugation, let him be pleased to observe, that these Verbs having the same Number of Syllables both in the Gerund and Participle, they being regularly formed from the Infinitive, the former by changing the final er into ant, and the latter by changing it into é, as parler, parlant, parlé; it is hardly possible for the Student to make any Mistake; we shall excuse ourselves likewise upon the Number of those Verbs, too great to be needlessly inserted in an Abridgment, being persuaded besides that this general Rule will be thought sufficient.

The Order of the Tenses in the Conjugation of the irregular Verbs is the same as in the Table, to wit, the Infinitive, the Gerund, the Participle, the Present, the Imperfect, the Preterite, the Future.

prétérit, le futur, le conditionnel, et le présent et le prétérit du subjonctif.

Future, the Conditional, and the Present and Preterite of the Subjunctive.

Toute l'irrégularité des verbes Anglois n'étant que dans quelques prétérits et participes, on les a joints à l'infinitif : ainsi on trouvera to bear, v. a. pret. bore, part. borne. To give, v. a. pret. gave, part. given. To put, pret. & part. put. Par-tout où il n'est pas marqué autrement, le verbe est régulier (ou de la forme de son primitif, si c'est un verbe composé) et le prétérit et le participe terminés en ed, se forment régulièrement de l'infinitif, soit en y ajoutant d si le verbe finit par une voyelle, comme to love, loved; ou ajoutant ed s'il se termine par une consonne, comme, to answer, answered; ou enfin en doublant la dernière consonne quand elle est précédée d'une simple voyelle; comme, to rub, rubbed; to beg, begged; to pin, pinned, &c.

The whole Irregularity of the English Verbs being only in some Preterites and Participles, these have been subjoined to their Infinitives. Thus we shall find to bear, v. a. pret. bore, part. borne To give, v. a. pret. gave, part. given. To put, pret. and part. put. Wherever they are not taken Notice of, the Preterite and Participle end in ed (except in compound Verbs, which follow the same Variations as their Primitives) and are regularly formed from the Infinitive, either by adding d to it, when it ends by a Vowel, as to love, loved; or ed when it ends by a Consonant, as to answer, answered or by doubling the last Consonant when it is preceded by a single Vowel; as to rub, rubbed; to beg, begged; to pin, pinned, &c.

Afin de perfectionner, autant qu'on a pu, cet Abrégé, on a encore ajouté le genre aux mots François dans la partie Angloise, lorsqu'il n'est pas déterminé par l'article le ou la; un ou une; ainsi on trouvera dans cette Edition shelving, f. pente, f. talus, m. the side of a hill, le penchant, ou la pente d'une colline; skill, f. science, f. savoir, m. adresse, habileté, expérience, capacité, f. par-tout où, comme dans ce dernier exemple, il y a plusieurs mots de suite sans aucune distinction, c'est qu'ils sont tous de même genre que le dernier, auquel est toujours jointe la lettre caractéristique m. ou f.

In order to bring this Abridgment as near as possible to its Perfection, we have added, in this Edition, the Genders to the French Words in the English Part, wherever it is not determined by the Article le or la; un or une. Thus shelving, f. pente, f. talus, m. the side of a hill, la pente ou le penchant d'une colline; skill, f. science, f. savoir, m. adresse, habileté, expérience, capacité, f. Whenever, as in this last Example, there are several Words together without any Distinction, they are all of the same Gender with the last of them, to which is ever added the characteristical Letter m. or f.

Des augmentations aussi considérables dans un Abrégé qui a déjà passé par tant d'éditions, et dont le mérite est si évidemment prouvé par la vente rapide de la dernière, malgré la Publication de plusieurs autres ouvrages de même genre, montrent tout à la fois le désintéressement des libraires associés, et le desir qu'ils ont de continuer à ne rien épargner pour perfectionner de plus en plus l'ouvrage qu'ils donnent au Public, et pour le lui rendre plus utile et plus agréable.

Such considerable Improvements and Additions to an Abridgment which has already gone thro' so many Editions, the Merit of which is so evidently ascertained by the quick Sale of the last Edition, in Spite of several other Publications of the same Kind, show at once the Disinterestedness of the Proprietors, and the Desire they have of sparing no Expence to improve and render still more acceptable and useful, the Performance which they offer to the Public.

ABRÉGÉ DU DICTIONNAIRE ROYAL.

PREMIÈRE PARTIE.

Qui contient le FRANÇOIS devant l'ANGLAIS.

THE ROYAL DICTIONARY ABRIDGED.

THE FIRST PART.

Containing the FRENCH before the ENGLISH.

A

A The first letter in the Alphabet in all languages, and first of the five vowels.

A, s. m. A. Un bon A, a good A.
† Il ne fait ni A ni B, he knows not A from B, he is a mere ignorant.

A is sometimes an article which denotes the dative case either singular or plural, à Pierre, to Peter. à l'homme, to the man. à eux, to them.

The article A being put before nouns and pronouns, sometimes betokens possession or appurtenance. à qui est cette maison? whose house is this? à Monsieur B——, Mr. B——'s. à qui est ce livre? whose book is this? à mon cousin, my cousin's; à moi, mine or my own; à nous, our's or our own.

Sometimes it signifies the duty, C'est à moi, it is my turn, it is my part or business, I am to——.

A is sometimes a preposition, which signifies to, in, into, at, after, against, within, by, on, &c. Aller à Paris, to go to Paris. Demeurer à Londres, to live in London. Aller à la campagne, to go into the country. à trois heures, at three o'clock. à trois jours de là, three days after. Cela est à la mode, this is in fashion. à demain, against to-morrow. à vingt lieues d'ici, twenty leagues off. à deux doigts de terre, within two inches of the ground. à force de bras, by strength of arm. à la faveur de la nuit, by the favour of the night. à ce prix-là, at that rate. à raison de six pour cent, at the rate of six per cent. à droite, on the right hand. à gauche, on the left hand.

A is also a particle which has several significations.

I. Sometimes it stands for the preposition, avec, with, pour, for, par, by. Bâtir à chaux & à sable, to build with sand and lime. Travailler à l'aiguille, to work with the needle. Un pot à l'eau, a water-pot. Un moulin à vent, a wind-mill. Une chaise à bras, an arm-chair. Une boîte à fusil, a tinder-box. Faites faire cela à vos valets, (au lieu de dire, par vos valets) bid your men do that.

II. Sometimes it signifies the gesture and posture of the body. à genoux, kneeling.

III. Sometimes the fashion, as, vêtu à la Française, dressed after the French fashion.

IV. Sometimes the quality, as, à l'épreuve du mousquet, musket-proof.

V. This particle sometimes goes before the infinitive mood of verbs, and commonly signifies aptness, disposition, or duty; and then it is Englished by the particle to. C'est à moi à parler, I am to speak, or it is my part, turn, or business to speak. C'est à vous à jouer, you are to play, or it is your turn to play. Or thus, Un maître à danser, a dancing-master. Un homme à tout faire, a man that will do any thing, or that is fit for any thing. Un homme à une parole, a man who is at a word.

A B A

VI. Sometimes it is put for the adverb, environ, about. Neuf à dix mille, about nine, or ten thousand.

VII. Sometimes it is used with a noun adverbially. à tort, wrongfully. à la hâte, hastily, in haste. à l'étourdie, rashly, heedlessly. à mesure que, as soon as, even as. à grand' peine, hardly, with much ado. Pied à pied, step by step, by degrees, gradually. à merveilles, admirably well, wonderfully well.

A is sometimes the third person singular of the present tense in the indicative mood of the verb avoir. Il a de l'argent, he has money. Il n'a point d'esprit, he has no wit. Il y a, there is, &c.
